—John Perkins, New York Times bestselling author of Confessions of an Economic Hitman “This is a very important and courageous book. Hugh Sinclair tells a gripping story of idealism, naiveté, callousness, greed, and corruption in the microfinance industry to show how it has been overrun by a new breed of loan sharks who make us believe they are helping the poor when they are actually exploiting them.

In "Confessions of a Medical Heretic," a wayward doctor goes rogue and sticks it to the man. Dr Mendelsohn is blunt, sarcastic and at times shockingly funny. He is also honest, which is refreshing and wonderful. This book was published in 1979, and much of what was written still holds true to this very day.
